

Art and theatre as tools of Human Rights Education for the primary prevention of peer violence in high schools in the Republic of Serbia

by: Mia Mujović

Aim of the Project

The main aim of the project was to explore the effect of the creative workshop on specific individual and group characteristics of participants found to play a role in the involvement of children in the act of peer violence, its potential to form a tool of Human Rights Education and the extent to which it could make a positive contribution in the area of primary prevention of peer violence in high- schools in the Republic of Serbia. The project in question was the basis of an M.A. Thesis - this report will summarise the main points related to the project and the conclusions arrived to within the study.