INVITATION

to the fifth station of the

COURSE OF CHANGE

Under the title "Course of Change", the collective Migrantas has developed a participatory project that will invite Berliners to express themselves on pressing social issues (migration, solidarity, coexistence, nature, gender, colonialism, and more). Various stations in the city will become an open stage to give space to these topics and to make the voices of those affected visible and audible. The selected topics will be depicted in pictograms and displayed at the individual outdoor event stations.

Station V:

Let's talk about Solidarity - What does solidarity mean to you?

Reading followed by urban action at Alice-Salomon-Platz

on Thursday 12th January 2023 from 10am

inside and outside the Alice-Salomon-Hochschule, Berlin-Hellersdorf

"Solidarity in action" is a key goal, which the Alice-Salomon-Hochschule together with its cooperation partners is pursuing. The sociologist and author Heinz Bude will read selected passages from his book "Solidarity. The Future of a Great Idea" and then discuss with social work students and interested actors from the district of Marzahn-Hellersdorf about what this idea(s) can do for us and for the design and creation of solidarity-based neighborhoods.

As part of the event, the collective Migrantas will explain the process of creating the pictograms and invite guests to leave comments and thoughts on the large banner using speech bubbles. Through a painting action on take-home tote bags and postcards, individuals will be encouraged to spread their messages on the topic of solidarity into the wider public sphere.

All are warmly welcome!
